[illegible]

[illegible] and regards it as an insult to his understanding.—He feels a sentiment of indignation and disdain toward those who should presume to teach him how to behave.—His sense is deceived, his soul is in a dream; he is fully confident that he sees things clearly, and yet he sees them in a false mirror, exactly such as they are not.

Nor is it always the youths of the least promise that are in the most danger. So far otherwise, those of forward parts, of lively imaginations, and of strong passions withal, are in peculiar hazard during those green years in which is the critical period of transition from the condition of boys to that of men.—The very qualities that distinguish them and set them above their fellows, diminish the likelihood of their establishing a sober steadiness of character, and oftimes are the means of launching them into the whirlpool of dissipation, where all is lost; where reputation, morals, and whatever is estimable in a human being, are all engulphed together.

How many instances do the perilous times we live in furnish—how many deplorable instances of hopeful boys, abandoned and lost, are they were out of their teens! And by how much the more their parents had doted upon them, by so much the more, are their hearts wrung with anguish.

Far less is the danger, for the most part, while the immature youth remains under the parental roof, or in "the well-ordered home." There he finds it not so easy, to shake off salutary restraints; there he needs must feel some respect for the opinion of the society in whose bosom he was born and educated, some reverence of parental authority, and some regard to the feelings of near kindred. But when he leaves the haven of home, and is pushed off into the stream of life, it is more than an even chance, that he will founder in the stream, if he have not previously been under the governance of moral and religious principle.—In his new situation, it often happens that he finds new enticements to lead him astray, and at the same time feels himself loosened from the authority and influence which had heretofore repressed his wayward propensities; and if vicious but genteel and artful companions, get the first hold on him, his ruin is in all probability sealed.

It was in clear view of these affecting circumstances, that the celestial poet, Cowper, penned the following lines:

—"My boy, the unwelcome hour is come,
When thou, transplanted from thy genial home,
Must find a colder soil, and bleaker air,
And trust for safety to a stranger's care."

It is hard to mourn over the death, but it is sometimes still harder to mourn over the life, of a beloved child. When they see the one whom they had expected would be found the solace of their age, the honour of their family, and an ornament to society—when they see him, at the instant of their highest hopes, turn to the ways of folly; no heart, but a heart thus exercised, can conceive the sharpness of the pang.—This is sorrow indeed; and the best that parents can do to prevent it, or rather all they can do, is to lay themselves out in good earnest to train up their children in the way they should go.

Good education, is the thing in the world the most important and desirable; but it is of wider scope than most people imagine.—What is called learning is only a part of it, and so far from being the most essential part, it is but the husk. In vain will you employ your endeavours to educate your children, unless you give seed to the heart, as well as culture to the understanding; unless you make their moral frame the subject of your assiduous and well-directed care; unless you take at least as much pains to make them well-principled, and of virtuous manners, as to make them shine in learning and accomplishments: for intellectual improvement, if their morals are neglected, will tend to render them wise only to do evil.—If you train up your boy to a strict regard to truth, honesty, and integrity, and a deep reverence of all that is sacred; if you train him up in habits of industry, temperance, and love of order—it is then, and only then, you can reasonably expect, that he will pass through the perilous crisis before him uncontaminated, and that his manhood will be crowned with honour.

Marshal Grouchy.—It is stated in the Albany Argus, that this gentleman has purchased a valuable tract of Land on the Black River.

COLUMBIA

WASHINGTON-CITY, NOV 27.

There arrived in this city on Friday morning, led by Gen. M'Intosh, and by Major Hughes, U. S. Factor, eight Chiefs and Warriors, deputed by the head men of the Muscogee or Creek nation, on a visit to the President of the United States. Of the object of their visit we are uninformed; but they are, we learn, invested with full powers to treat on all points relating to their nation. This deputation is composed of the principal officers who enrolled early in the Creek war, and who, under M'Intosh, co-operated with Major Gen Jackson during the whole war, and latterly with their leader, marched against the Negro Fort on Apalachicola, which they united with Col. Clinch in the destruction of.—Nat. Intel.

NEW-YORK.

NEW-YORK, DEC. 2.

Spanish Revolutionists.

A letter from St. Barts, dated Nov. 12th, says, "accounts were received a few days since, via St Thomas, stating that a severe engagement was fought on the 28th of October, on the plains of Barcelona, 6 miles distant from the town, between the royal and patriot armies. Sir Gregory M'Gregor commanded on the part of the patriots, and Gen. Morales for the royalists;—the forces were about equal—7000 strong. M'Gregor succeeded in taking 2500 prisoners, and killing 8 or 900, together with the possession of the town.—Gen. Morales had escaped into the mountains, and left behind his horse, baggage, &c. The patriots were in possession of several other parts of the Maine. Their fleet was said to be at Margaretta. The patriot privateers are cruising in great numbers between St. Thomas and Porto Rico; several American and Spanish vessels have been boarded by them, and treated with the greatest politeness. They have recently captured several Spanish vessels with valuable cargoes. The Governor of this island has issued his proclamation dated 6th inst. rigidly prohibiting all vessels from Guadaloupe and Antigua entering the port, owing to the prevalence of the yellow fever in those islands. Several cases have occurred here, introduced by vessels from the said places."

December 4.

Two days later from London.

The British brig Berwickshire, which arrived at this port yesterday, sailed from Bristol on the 28th of October, and brought a copy of the British Mirror of the 26th, containing London dates of the evening of the 24th of that month, with which the Editors of the Mercantile Advertiser have been favoured.

London, Thursday evening, Oct. 24.

We have had various rumours in circulation to-day, which whether true or false have had the effect to cause a considerable depression in the funds It was reported that a secret correspondence had been intercepted, between the Court of Vienna and Bonaparte, and that the Austrian Commissioner had been detected in an intrigue for Bonaparte's release; the rumour of a dissolution of Parliament was also revived. We have no reason to believe in the truth of either of the reports. Lastly, there was another report in circulation, which was considered much more feasible than the rest; namely, that the prospect of the speedy opening of our ports for the importation of corn having caused a fall in the rate of exchange, the foreigners, who had been waiting an opportunity to sell, availed themselves of this circumstance, and disposed of their stock accordingly.—What is to be depended on is, that a foreign broker, supposed to be in possession of some information, threw upon the market some hundred thousands of stock, which caused the depression we have noticed.

The French News-Papers tell the world, that trade goes on prosperously, (says a private letter from Paris,) and that the harvest has been tolerably good. This is too gross The French are indignant at such a mockery of their actual condition. The fact is, that the bad weather has already set in, and with it symptoms of a famine. The necessity of having fires necessarily affects the means of the lower orders, from the high price of [illegible] the day [illegible] that they could not obtain [illegible] found necessary to call in several Commissaries of the Police, attended by gens d'armes, to disperse them. The want of employment presses upon the poor [illegible] and with the utmost vigour [illegible] the government through this trying season. It will be no easy task to manage the populace of Paris, stimulated by famine and a refractory Chamber. One important measure for the security of Paris, is the presence of 8000 Swiss troops, some of which are arrived.

There have been riots at Heckington in Lincolnshire, and at Sunderland.—The principal rioters in the former place consisted of women and boys. On Thursday se'night they attacked the houses of some millers and tradesmen; after which they separated, meaning to resume their outrages on the ensuing day, but the ringleaders were arrested in the mean time. Nine of them were tried on Thursday at Sleaford, of whom five, including four females were found guilty. The riot at Sunderland took place in the market on Friday, when all the corn was forcibly seized and carried off by the populace; but by the activity of the constables, nearly the whole of it was restored to the proper owners.—The system of frame-breaking, we regret to state, continues in Nottinghamshire. On Saturday night, 19th inst. upwards of 30 frames were broken at Lumley, 6 miles from Nottingham.—The depredators rifled several of the houses of every kind of property.

December 4.

Arrival of the Boxer.

Capt Porter, of the United States brig Boxer, who arrived this morning in 14 days from Havanna, informs us, that a Spanish convoy, consisting of from 15 to 20 sail, left Havanna for Cadiz, on the 13th of November, under convoy of a sloop of war of 22 guns, and the sch'r Cassadore. It was reported that the sloop of war had 6,000,000 dollars in specie and a valuable cargo on board. It was also reported, that the Spaniards had pressed several Americans, who had lately returned from Africa, in a slave vessel.

The Directors of the Bank of the United States have appointed John Sargeant, Esq. a member of their board, to proceed to London for the purpose of negociating for 10,000,000 of Spanish dollars, offered by a commercial house in that city. Mr. Sergeant will take his departure as soon as he can make the necessary arrangements.

From South-America.

Capt. Moore, of the brig Eunice, which arrived here yesterday in 65 days from Rio Grande, informs, that the Portuguese troops were passing through that place at the time he left there.—They were said to be destined against Monte Video; but it was supposed they would easily be repulsed by the Patriots.

MASSACHUSETTS.

BOSTON, DEC. 4.

Separation of Maine.

The committee of the Legislature on the subject of the District of Maine, yesterday reported in the Senate two resolves.—That the contingency on which the separation was to take place, had not happened; and that the powers of the Brunswick Convention had ceased, and that the present Legislature could adopt no further measures on the subject.

FRENCH NEWS.

We derive very little political news from France, through the medium of its papers; and what is obtained from private correspondence, though more general and diffusive, is still but little satisfactory to our understanding, being invariably tinctured with the prejudices that exist among the parties, with whom the writers are in the habit of associating with. The best inferences we can draw of the existing affairs in Europe, are those which naturally arise from a perusal of the acts of the several governments; and these are grounded on the expectation of a Peace, that seems to be secured by every chain of interest, that can link nations together.

The protection of our Commerce in the Mediterranean, and along the Spanish shore, in South-America, will probably give employ to a large portion of our Navy.—Employment is what our young officers require; and it is wise in our government to give it them, in some quarter or other.

Extract of a letter to a merchant in Baltimore, dated Richmond, Nov. 26.

"By the arrival of the Comet at Norfolk from Greenock, we have received letters a few days later than those by the Importer, which do not give such gloomy accounts of the harvest, and in consequence flour hangs heavy here to-day, and cannot be sold for $ 11 cash, although that price might be obtained in time."

[illegible] TUESDAY, DEC. 7, 1816.

CONGRESS.

[illegible] formed a quorum on Monday last. A Committee was appointed to wait on the President, to inform him that the two Houses were organized, and ready to proceed to business.—The Committee reported, that the President would send a Message on Tuesday, at 12 o'clock.

Before the Senate adjourned on Monday, Mr. VARNUM, of Massachusetts, introduced a resolution to repeal the Compensation Law.

NEW-YORK, DEC. 3.

Distressing Calamity.

About [illegible] o'clock on Tuesday night, a fire broke out in the back part of the house No. 181 Water-street, occupied by Mr. John Hewett as a cabinet makers shop. The wind at the moment blowing strong from the south-west, the flames spread with almost incredible force, until about thirty dwelling houses and stores, in Water and Front streets, between Burling and Beekman slips, were laid in ruins. Almost the entire block together with several buildings on the northern side of Water-street, and two on the eastern side of Beekman-slip, were destroyed. Flakes of burning shingles were driven upon the roofs of many buildings in the range of the wind to a great distance; to extinguish which, required the constant and laborious exertions of their occupants Several vessels were also covered with flakes and cinders, and were preserved by the vigilance and activity of the seamen. One of the Rhode-Island Packets had her topsail set on fire, which was consumed.

The flames spread so rapidly, that much of the furniture and goods taken from the buildings on fire, was consumed in the street, it being impossible to remove it to a place of safety.

We regret to state that a number of the Firemen were severely injured by the falling of timber and walls. Mr. George Herrick, belonging to Engine No. 13, was buried beneath the gable end of Mr. Allen's house, and had his thigh broken.—Mr. Tallman, belonging to the same Engine, and Mr Isaac Skaates, of the 40th, had also each a thigh broken, and Mr. Timothy Baldwin, Mr. Henry Crumb, Mr. Keyser, and Mr. Ruckle, all belonging to No. 40, were severely injured. Mr. Crumb was buried under a brick wall, and among the ruins lost his hat, watch, and one of his boots A sailor fell from a ladder, and was taken up apparently lifeless. He was soon restored, and is, we understand, not dangerously injured.

The amount of property destroyed, we have not been able to ascertain. It cannot be estimated at less than two hundred thousand dollars.

PROVIDENCE, DEC. 6.

Public Dinner.

Agreeably to previous arrangements, a Dinner was yesterday given by the citizens of this town at Washington Hall, in honor of his Excellency JONATHAN RUSSELL, late Minister Plenipotentiary to Sweden, and one of our Commissioners in negotiating the treaty at Ghent. The company, consisting of about 100 gentlemen, set down at 5 o'clock, to a table richly furnished by Col. Macomber with the good things of the land. The Hon. James Burrill, jun. officiated as President of the board, and his Hon. Judge Lyman, Gen. Carrington, Cols. Arnold, Hoppin and Blodget, and Dr. Levi Wheaton, as Vice-Presidents.—A number of dignified and appropriate toasts were drank on the occasion.

Separation of Maine.

The report of the Committee on the subject of the Separation of Maine, has been accepted, without debate, in both branches of the legislature of Massachusetts.

The Hon. Rufus King, of New-York, received the 22 electoral votes of Massachusetts, for President of the United States; and the Hon. John E. Howard, of Maryland, had the same number for Vice-President.

It is hinted that the high price of U. S. Bank Scrip at Baltimore, Philadelphia, &c. has been partly occasioned by a disposition to acquire the right of voting at the next choice of General Directors.

A severe storm of wind and hail was experienced at Buffalo, (Lake Erie,) on the 15th November.—All the vessels at anchor there, parted their cables, and drove ashore. Among them was the U. S. sch Porcupine, Lieut. Champlin, which had recently arrived from St. Mary's Falls, (Lake Superior,) with Col. Hawkins and Major Roberdeau. No lives are mentioned to have been lost.

Saving Bank.

The Saving Bank of New-York is nearly organized. A Constitution is adopted, and 28 Directors chosen, who are to have their first meeting on Tuesday next, when they will choose a President and Cashier. Among the Directors are De Witt Clinton, Brockholst Livingston, Peter A. Jay, Richard [illegible] Collectors [illegible] Rutgers, and Wi[illegible] [illegible] one dollar, upwards [illegible] per cent. allowed on all sums between 5 and 50 dollars, and [illegible] per cent. on all larger sums. The whole or any part of deposits payable on demand or to check. Tables of compound interest to be presented to each depositor.

"Reynolds's Commemoration Society."

In our last paper we published a short notice of the life and death of the late Mr. RICHARD REYNOLDS, of Bristol, England.—The death of this distinguished philanthropist, we are happy to find, has given birth to a charitable Institution in Bristol, under the name which we have prefixed to this article.—It appears to have been the two-fold object of forming this Society, to commemorate the virtues of the benevolent and venerable REYNOLDS, and in some measure to supply, by the combined charities of thousands, the loss which his death alone has occasioned to the children of penury and distress.

This Society was formed at a general meeting of the Inhabitants of Bristol, (Eng.) convened by public advertisement on the 2d of Oct. last; and before the Meeting adjourned. Donations were subscribed to the amount of L. 396 10s. sterling, and Annual subscriptions received to the amount of L. 109 4s.—The proceedings of this Meeting were peculiarly interesting and impressive.—Several gentlemen addressed the meeting on this occasion, and we regret that our limits will not permit us to give all their speeches.—We however, with pleasure, present to our readers the following address of the Rev. Mr. THORP, to the Meeting, which will not suffer in point of eloquence, by a comparison with any we have, ever read.—It richly deserves an attentive perusal:—

"Mr. CHAIRMAN,—Sir,—Never surely were the inhabitants of Bristol convened upon a more solemn or a more affecting occasion than the present—to render a grateful tribute of respect to one of the best of men, and to perpetuate the memory of a philanthropist of singular and transcendant excellence. Thousands can testify that he was an ornament of our nature—an honor to our city—the glory of the society to which he belonged—and a blessing to the empire and the world. When the eye saw him, it blessed him—when the ear heard him, it bare him witness; he was eyes to the blind, and feet to the lame; the cause which he knew not, he searched out; he made the widow's heart to sing for joy; and the blessing of the outcast orphan, ready to perish, came upon him. He is now gone to that country, from whose bourne no traveller returns; and while Bristol, with her widows and her orphans, are weeping over his ashes, the whole nation has reason to lament his departure. That departure, however, was attended with many alleviating circumstances; which, although they may deepen our sensibility, are calculated to assuage the violence of our grief.—We sorrow not, for this righteous man, as those that have no hope. We entertain the faith of Christians, and cannot give place to the despair of heathens. He hath rested from his labors, and his works shall follow him—not to procure his title, but to prove his RIGHT to the Tree of Life, and to enter within the gates of the Heavenly Jerusalem.—We adore that kind and indulgent Providence, which spared his valuable life for so many years, and thus permitted him to mature those plans which he had projected for the relief of misery, ages after his decease.—We congratulate our fellow-citizens on the honor they have done to themselves, by assembling this day to embalm his memory with their tears—to catch, with his falling mantle, the sacred flame that glowed with such fervor in his bosom—and to do what within them lies to give immortality to a name so dear and so venerable. That we may be enabled with more facility to transcribe his virtues, and copy his example, let us review the characters of that benevolence by which he was so eminently distinguished.

The benevolence of RICHARD REYNOLDS, Sir, was of the highest order.—It was liberal, diffusive, universal.—Not narrowed by party prejudice, nor bounded by the limits of party connections, it embraced the Family of Man—yea the whole circle of living beings, endowed with a capacity of pleasure or of pain.—In its contemplation of the vast, however, it did not overlook the minute; in its comprehension of the whole, it did not, like the modern philosophy, neglect the parts of which that whole is composed. Its operations were regulated by the respective claims of nature, of gratitude, of friendship, of consanguinity, of religious connections, of moral worth, and of the various degrees of wretchedness amongst the unhappy objects upon whom his bounty was bestowed.

Proceeding, in the first instance, from compassion, it was afterwards purified by religious principle,—and strengthened by a sense of his awful responsibility to the great Lord of All, for the talents with which he was entrusted. Compassion, improperly cultivated, degenerates into an useless sensibility. The pleasure that attends it, soothes and de-

[illegible] ...the very sphere of [illegible] ; to [illegible] time, and thoughts, and talent, and [illegible]r, and property—this is the substance, and not the shadow of virtue : [illegible] pleasure of sensibility may be great[illegible] ; but greater also is the danger of [illegible]deceit. Death-bed scenes, eloquently described, delight the imagination ; but they who are most delighted, are not always the first to visit a dying neighbour, and sit up all night, and wipe away the cold sweat, and moisten the parched lip, and remove the phlegm, and contrive easy postures, and bear with fretfulness, and drop the pious thought, and console the departing spirit ! Ah no ! These boasted children of sentimental benevolence, may often repair to the temple of virtue, but not to sacrifice. Extreme sensibility is a mental disease ; it unfits us for relieving the miserable, and tempts us to turn away, like the cold-hearted Priest and Levite. It avoids the sight, and suppresses the thought of pain,—stops the ears to the cry of indigence, passes by the house of mourning, and abandons the nearest friends, when sick, to the care of the nurse and the physician ; and when dead, to those who mourn for hire. And all this under the pretence of delicacy of feeling, and a tender heart ! Such was not the benevolence of the Bristol Philanthropist. Those acts of bounty which flow from the influence of sensibility, soon fail ; like the good seed fallen on stony ground, they soon spring up, and as soon wither.—But the benevolence of Richard Reynolds, purified, strengthened, and animated by Christian principle, was steady, uniform, and persevering. Neither ingratitude, [illegible] imposture, nor opposition, nor even [illegible]ust of age, could chill its ardors, or relax its exertions.

It was active and industrious. His eloquence was not that of words, but that of deeds. He said little, but he did much. He left others to define benevolence ; he studied the practice of it.—While the child of sensibility was weeping, he was extending relief. While philosophers were disputing whether philanthropy arose from selfishness, or instinctive tenderness, or modes of education, or the force of early and local associations, or from the combined influence of all those causes—heedless of their contentions, he was exemplifying in real life, privately, and before the world, the character of a true philanthropist. Their speculation he reduced to action—their abstract notions he embodied ; and to their airy nothings, he gave not only a local habitation but a reality, a substance and a form. Like his beloved Master, whose spirit he had imbibed, and whose example he closely copied, he went about continually doing good.

His beneficence was guided by wisdom and discretion. It was not scattered promiscuously and at random, but bestowed upon such objects, and in such a way, as he deemed, (and he was a most excellent judge) the most effective in promoting the individual and general good. To furnish employment for the healthy and the strong ; to supply the wants of the really indigent and necessitous ; to ease the aching heart of the father, who after toiling the live-long day, finds, instead of rest at home, that he is called to bear, what he is least able to bear, the cries of a numerous family demanding bread, when he has none to give ; to assuage the sorrows of poverty, overtaken by sickness or overwhelmed with misfortune ; to smooth the furrowed cheek, and make the winter of age wear the aspect of spring ; to act the part of a father to helpless orphans, on whom no parent of their own ever smiled ; to supply the want of sight to the blind, feet to the lame, and speech to the dumb ; to rescue vice from guilt, and infamy, and ruin ; and during the season, afford a shelter from the fury of the storm ; to relieve the distress, and yet spare the blushes of those who have known better days, by administering that bounty, which they in the time of their prosperity were ready to administer to others—these were the employments of Richard Reynolds—these the objects of his beneficence—these were the offices of mercy in which he delighted ! His heart told him what to do ; his conscience, as the Vicegerent of Heaven, reminded him of the claims of moral obligation, and insisted that it must be done. His head devised the means, and arranged the plan of action ; and his hands, obedient to the dictates of his heart and the mandates of conscience, were ever ready to execute the plans which his head had formed. Thus his WHOLE EXISTENCE was consecrated to the cause of benevolence ! If we love the modesty which concealed the hand that bestowed the princely donation, we revere the courage which occasionally stepped forward to avow himself the donor, when his design was to stimulate others to follow his example.—His whole conduct was marked by the most consummate wisdom ; and left us at a loss whether to admire most the benevolence of his heart or the power of his [illegible] the motives of all talents [illegible] ; but the man in the parable, who had but one talent, was accountable ; and for the talent that I possess, humble as it is, I am also accountable to the great Lord of All." His bounty was not the result of fear, like the obedience of a slave who trembles under the scourge of a haughty tyrant. It was not excited by the prospect of remuneration, nor extorted by the dread of punishment, nor performed with a view to merit an inheritance in the kingdom of Heaven. All such sentiments he rejected with abhorrence—placed his whole dependence for eternal life upon the Sovereign Mercy of God, through the propitiating sacrifice of his Redeemer ; and if the gates of Heaven had been closed, and the flames of Hell extinguished, he would have loved mercy, and delighted in acts of charity !—He laid claim to no distinctions, assumed no airs of superiority, and never attempted to catch the public eye, by an ostentatious display of extraordinary excellence. His goodness often descended in secret, and like the Providence of Heaven, concealed the hand that sent the relief.—He was a burning and a shining light, and would have no man know it. But he could not be hid. To hide goodness like his was impossible. How have I seen the good man shrink within himself, and his venerable countenance crimsoned with the blush of modesty, when the mention of his name has been h[illegible]d in this place with a thunder of applause.

His charity was of Heavenly origin, and bore the impress of his Maker's Image. It was derived from an immediate union with the greatest of all blessings, and the fountain of all happiness ; and as the mind naturally assimilates itself to those objects with which it is familiarly conversant, by immediate intercourse with his God, he caught the resemblance of his Glory. For God is Love ; and he that dwelleth in Love, dwelleth in God, and God in him.—His body was the Temple of the Holy Ghost ; built indeed with a lowly roof, but attended with Cherubim and Seraphim.—There an altar was erected to the living God, whence the flame of devotion, and the incense of praise, ascended, day and night. In the Temple, as in the Jewish Sanctuary, the Shekinah, the visible symbol of a present Deity, was enshrined above the mercy seat, and occasionally shone forth, and shed a glory all around. In his measure he was filled with the fullness of God.

No wonder if benevolence like his was a source of happiness to himself, as well as of relief to others.—It was a spring shut up,—a fountain sealed,—a garden enclosed, which the eagle's eye never saw, and the foot of the unclean beast never trod. Enamoured with the charms of Virtue, he delighted to behold her native beauties, and to obey her sweet commands. He practised benevolence, for the sake of the pleasure with which the practice of it was attended. He felt a luxury in doing good, and he determined to enjoy that luxury. His own experience taught him, that the God of Mercy, who formed the heart of man to be the dispenser of his bounty, has ordained, that like the vital fluid, which goes from the heart, to diffuse life and genial warmth through the whole system, it should return, in the course of circulation, not impoverished, but enriched, to the source whence it flowed. His goodness might sometimes be requited with evil, but this moved him not. He knew that no deed of mercy could be wasted ; —that some ministering angel is stationed, in every department of the moral world to gather up the fragments that fall from the table of benevolence, that nothing may be lost. Actuated by these noble principles, he held on his glorious career, still scattering blessings around him, until he resigned his meek and gentle spirit into the hands of his Redeemer : to enjoy the fulness of his love, and to behold the brightness of his glory, in the regions of eternal day. By relieving the miserable, he made himself friends of the mammon of unrighteousness, many of whom had gone before him, and have now hailed him, as their benefactor, on his arrival into everlasting habitations."

In this town on Monday last, Mrs. FRANCES ROBINSON, consort of the late Capt. William C. Robinson, in the 43d year of her age.—In Mrs. Robinson was united every virtue that adorn the human character ; the uniformity of her life, the benevolence of her heart, the amiableness of her disposition, her love of religion and resignation to death, are powerful evidences that she was truly a Christian.—Blessed in her illness with the certain hope of enjoying everlasting

Some Seraph, wanderer of the sky,

E'er threw around such magic power,
Or breath'd more sweet in lonely hour.

That song is o'er, the breeze of night

Thy trembling chords no more shall sigh,
No fairy minstrel hovers nigh.

Farewell, sweet harp, for damp decay
Upon thy mouldering chords shall dwell,
And thou shalt breathe no future lay,
And thou shalt raise no future swell,
The breeze flies by, the music's o'er,
The fairy sounds can charm no more.
